

Roman Baths- Kamberg - 1 Nov 2025

Report by: Megan Loots

The day was sunny with a welcoming breeze. A nice size group of approximately 18 hikers and off we set.

Dotted along the way Dave gave us some interesting facts and stories.

We stopped to view the ruins of one of the original homesteads and learnt that the region was deemed a nature reserve in 1951.

One geographic feature was in eyesight most of the way, the balancing rocks, a good visual marker to ensure you on the right track.

The walk itself was mainly on vehicle track eventually branching off to singular path.

With little shade we were all happy to arrive upon the 'romans baths', most just dipping in their feet and legs, only one brave soul (Beth) taking a full plunge.

A rest, lunch, some photos and we were off homeward bound; but what's a good hike without some sunburn, broken shoes, stepping in mud, torn pants...it's all part of good memories and a good hike.
