An epic adventure on its own was heading deep into the Valley of 1000 Hills.

A high-spirited hike packed with stunning views, winding riverside trails and fresh mountain air.

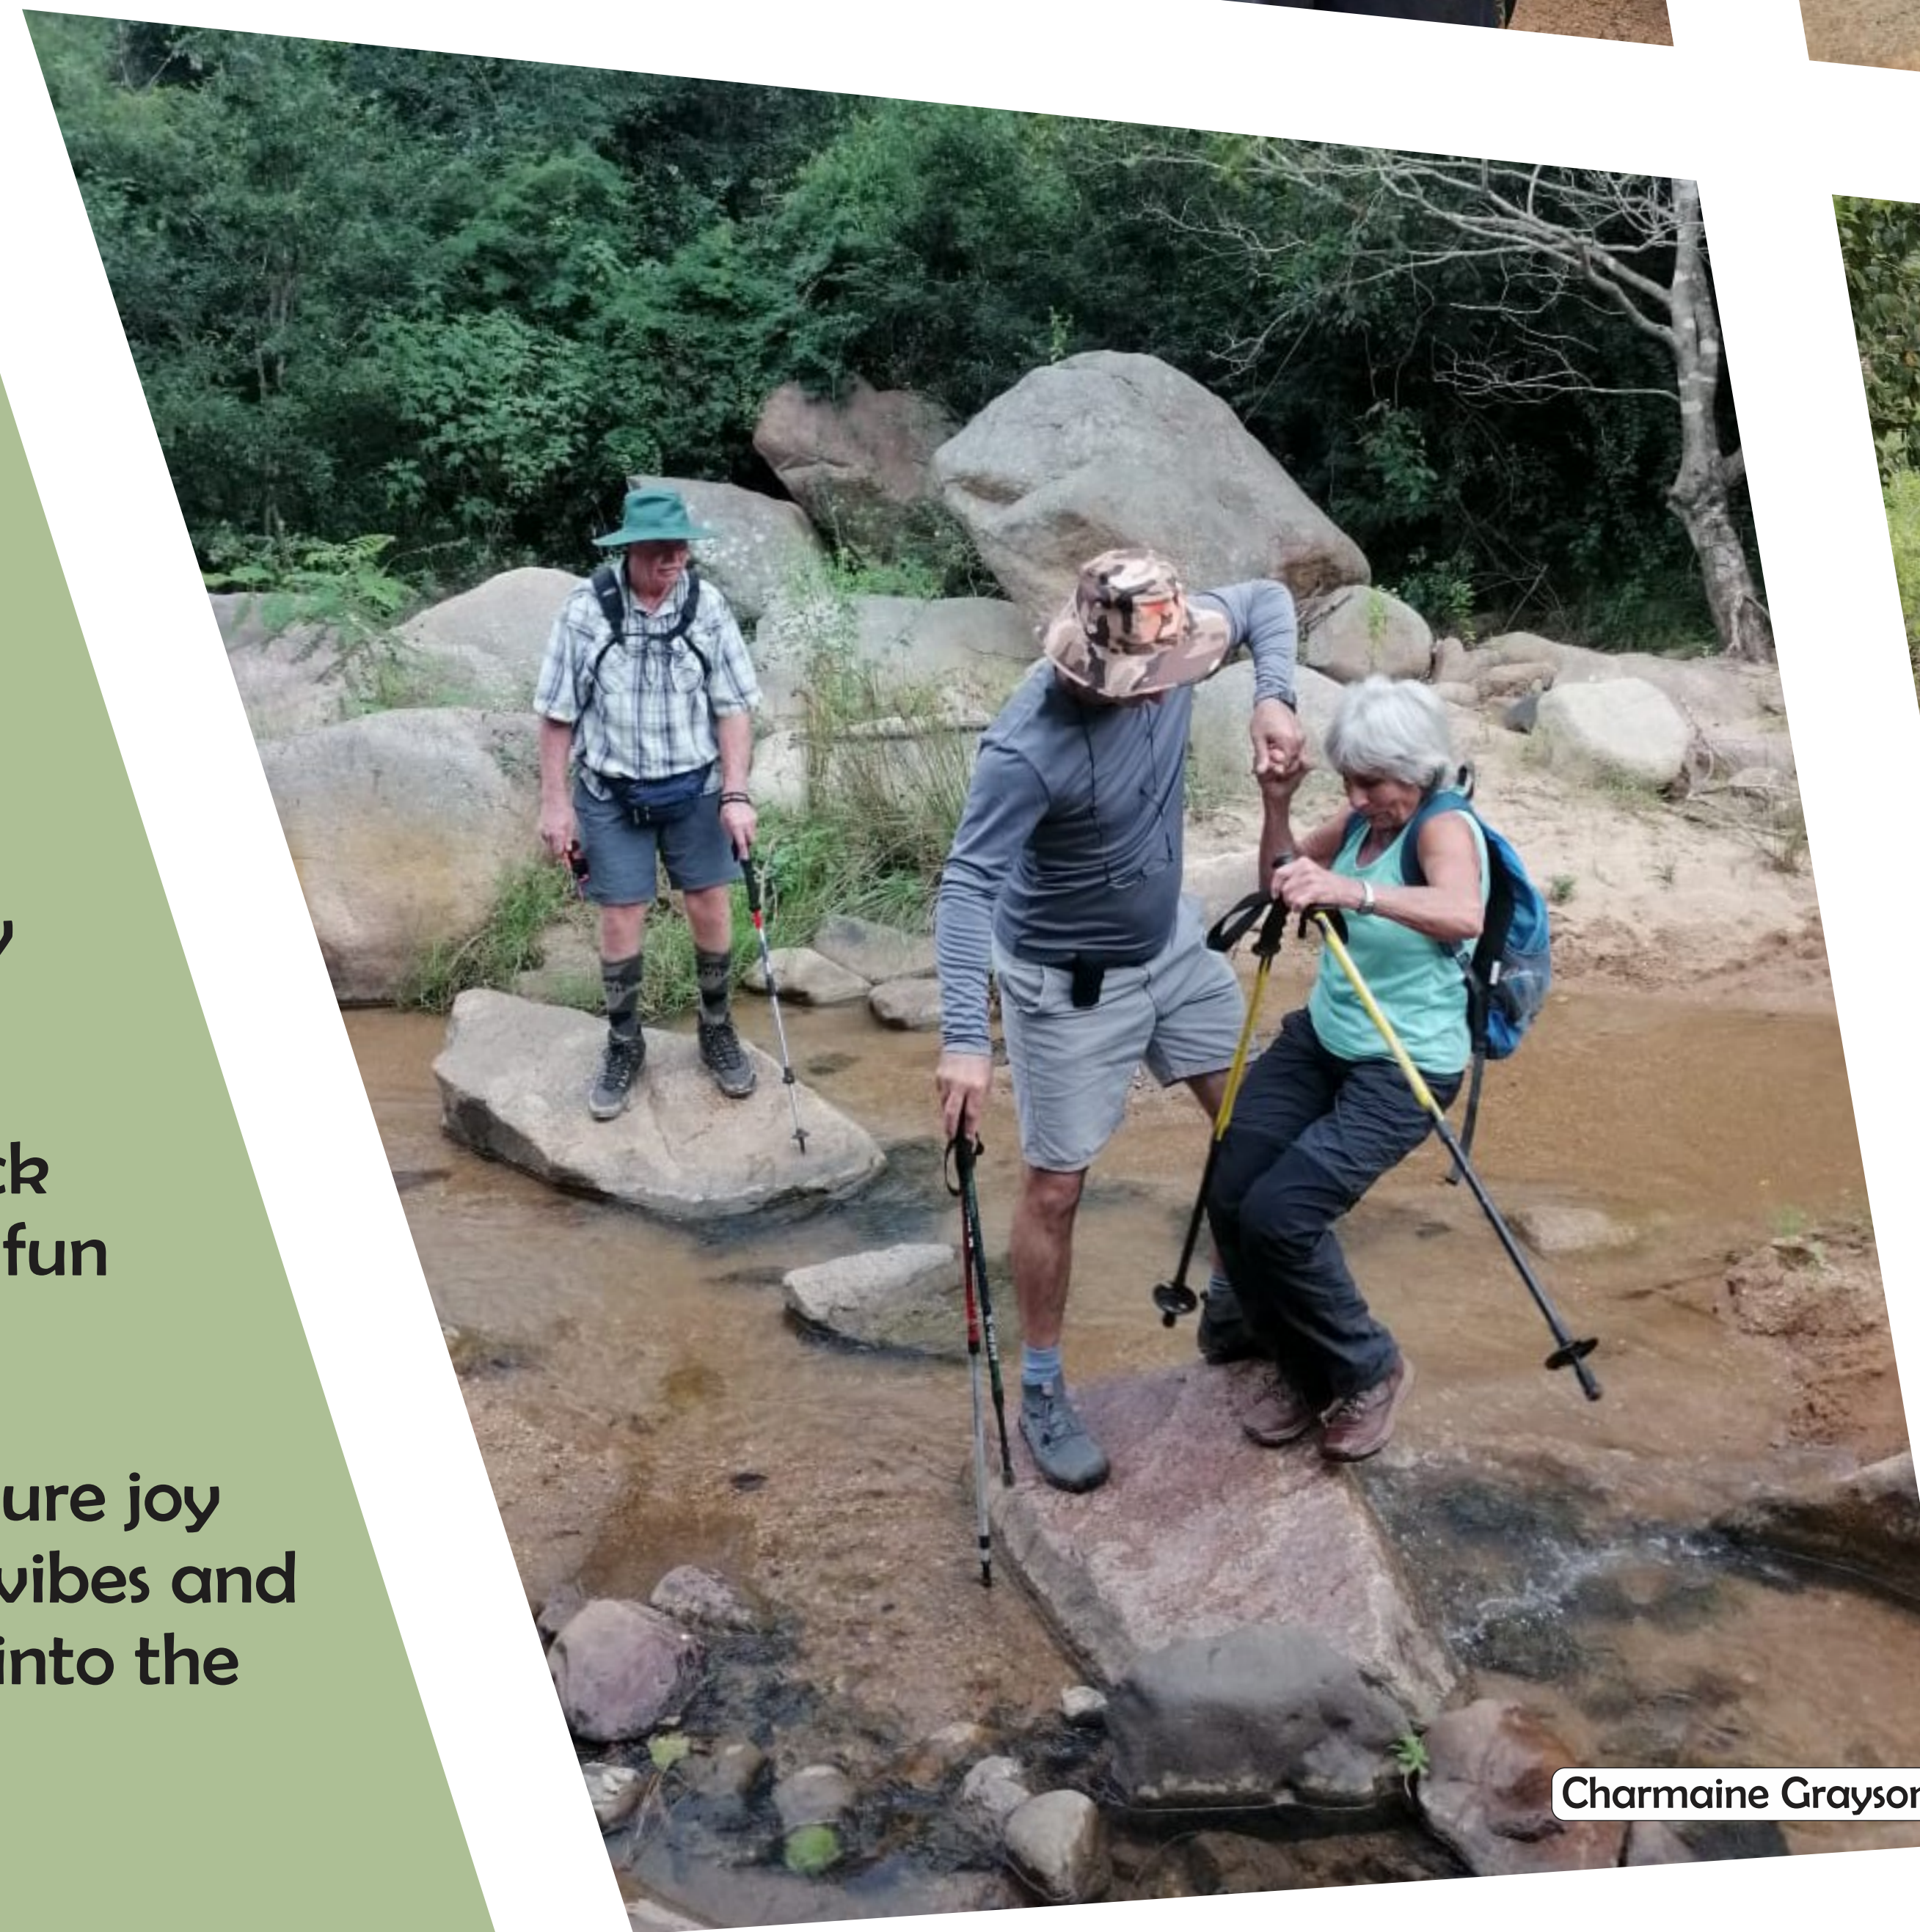

I was after a hike that was easy going rather than steep - but still had the "wow" factor. It didn't disappoint. The trail was full of surprises with just the right touch of adventure. There were enough twists and turns along the way to keep things interesting and memorable.

With a slight drizzle along the way did not dampen spirits. Soon the sunshine was out and we soaked up the beauty around us.

After the hike it was time to unwind with a laid-back picnic before hopping onto tubes and drifting into fun while floating down the Mqeku River.

The air was filled with laughter, splashes and pure joy which echoed through the valley. With good vibes and great company it was truly a joyful escape into the heart of the Valley of 1000 Hills.
